BACHELOR OF SCIENCE IN PSYCHOLOGY

Our former faculty like Abraham Maslow, Viktor Frankl, Carl Rogers, and Igor Ansoff, who are widely considered psychological innovators, are only a few of the names that ushered us into this great period of self-enlightenment and self-improvement. Students in the Bachelor of Science in Psychology Degree Program, offered by, the California School of Professional Psychology (CSPP) at Alliant International University are embarking on a journey to further thought leadership and understanding in the field. A journey that enables them to continue the legacy of our psychological forefathers.

Through coursework built on a foundation of scientific study, you will discover the theories, research methods, and data analysis techniques that carried us to where we are today. You will be challenged to drive the progress we still need in the helping professions. A challenge for which you will be prepared through your extensive and thorough field training experiences. And at CSPP, you will do this all with a multicultural mindset. Because if we've learned nothing else over the years, it's that individual stories demand to be heard.

HANDS-ON PRACTICE

At its core, our BS in Psychology Degree Program is about immersion and growth. Field placements are an integral part of the curriculum. Placement sites often include clinical, educational, forensic, hospital, and research settings. These sites* include:

- The World Health Organization
- Court Appointed Special Advocate
- U.S. Attorney's Office
- United Way
- U.S. Department of Veteran Services
- Department of Public Health, San Diego
- San Diego Psychiatric Hospital
- Urban Collaborative Project
- American Civil Liberties Union
- Aging and Independent Services
- San Diego Psychiatric Hospital
- San Diego Police Department

You'll gain valuable experience that can only be found outside the classroom. Theory, data, cultural awareness – these are just some of the psychological practices you will apply in a real-world setting. Most importantly, field placement will enable you to grow. As a student, a professional, as a caregiver, and as a human being.

THE ALLIANT CHOICE

We don't take it lightly when a student chooses us for their education. Making Alliant International University your home means choosing more than just a school. It means choosing quality, from faculty to finish.

Learning at Alliant is not just about coursework, though that's paramount. It's not just about internships, though they're vital. The greatness of an institution of higher education can be found in the harmonious balance of both scholarship and hands-on training. It's also found in those you are learning with, learning from, and how you will transform your education into impact.

THE ALLIANT CHOICE

Students in our BS in Psychology Degree Program also have the opportunity to engage with the community that they are helping reshape. Our Community Mentors Program brings together those who are interested in community outreach, future and current service providers, academic researchers, and law enforcement to find common ground and build competencies together, all while helping the members of our communities who need a compassionate helping hand.

Regular participants include county health and human services and probation, the National Conflict Resolution Center, Union of Pan Asian Communities, San Diego Compassion Project, Social Advocates for Youth (SAY) San Diego, Project AWARE, and members of the faith community.

The program covers concepts mental health practitioners and social workers use, such as restorative practices and trauma-informed care, and professional standards and practices for street outreach.

THE WORLD MOVES FAST. NOW YOUR DEGREE CAN, TOO.

The quickest route to a CSPP graduate psychology degree, the Fast-Track option, allows you to spend time taking ‘bridge classes.’ These graduate-level courses count toward both the completion of your bachelor’s degree and a master’s degree. Fast-Track is available for the following graduate degrees:

- MA in Marriage and Family Therapy
- MA in Organizational Psychology
- MA in Clinical Counseling
