V. What is ARC? Chris Tarman, Sr. Dean Research, Planning and Institutional Effectiveness

Chris explained ARC, Accountability Reporting for Community Colleges, was the way community colleges reported on student success; ARC is now the Student Success Scorecard. The Student Success Scorecard allows colleges to monitor success gaps and use that information for improvement. Chris reported at the GCCCD Student Success Committee workshop the previous week the discussion was centered on what keeps students moving forward and how the Student Success Scorecard can be used to find the deficiencies. More information regarding the Student Success Scorecards and both colleges' scorecards can be found at <http://scorecard.cccco.edu/scorecard.aspx>.

VI. District Student Success Committee & the State Student Success Task Force Recommendations
Jeff Baker, VP Student Services Grossmont College

Jeff reviewed why so many discussions are regarding student success; the Student Success Task Force made 22 recommendations for California Community Colleges and student success and achievement are key to many of the recommendations. Jeff noted that many of the recommendations are becoming laws and aspects of Title V are changing as well. He noted one of the recommendations was a call for the Student Success Scorecard, which has been implemented and was reviewed by Dean Tarman. Jeff reported that the GCCCD Student Success Committee is closely watching the changes the state is making and keeping GCCCD prepared. Jeff then reviewed the Scorecard and the categories included. In closing, Jeff encouraged the faculty members to take the lead in helping students feel engaged, connected and valued; faculty can make the greatest impact as every student on the campus is in a classroom.
