

The Henrietta Lacks Project: Campus Open House

Monday, October 31st, 2011, 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Participating departments feature discipline-specific exhibits.
Instructors are encouraged to bring classes.

Legend

Building 62

Bookstore

Open House

Pick up Rebecca Skloot's The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks, the sensational book that started it all, discounted at 25% just for today's open house!

Building 70 (First Floor)

Learning Resource

and Technology Center

Examine a timeline of Skloot's The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks, student artwork, and a Lacks-related book display.

EQ-English Quad

Outdoor Performance Stage

10:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

Listen to student writers read/perform poems, letters, and page-to-stage scripts inspired by art student drawings and Henrietta Lacks.

Building 30-Room 128

Science Laboratory

Biology Department

Observe real (but not live) HeLa cells and make a slide of your own cells to view!

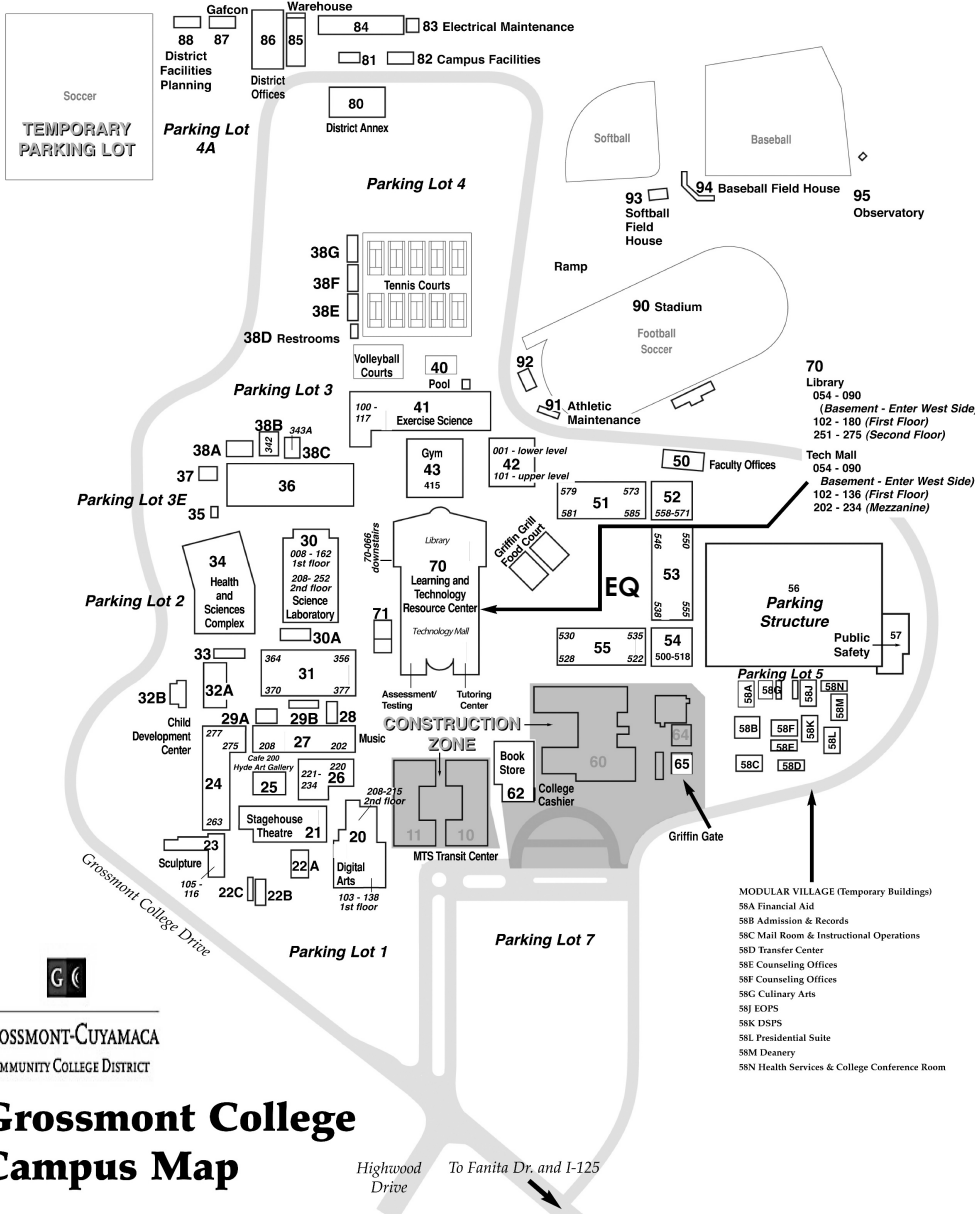

Building 34 (Upstairs Atrium)

Health and Science Complex

Nursing Program

"The Immortal Life of Henrietta Lacks: A Nursing Perspective"

View over 35 posters created by students in response to Rebecca Skloot's book. Topics explored include ethical principles, medical care then and now, and the history of informed consent. Nursing students will be available to discuss their work.

GROSSMONT-CUYAMACA
COMMUNITY COLLEGE DISTRICT

Grossmont College Campus Map

Between Building 52 & 53
English Department Breezeway
"Letters to Lacks" Wall
Read letters to Henrietta Lacks written by the English Department's reading, composition, literature, and creative writing students.

Building 24-Room 274
Art & Design Studio
"Henrietta Lacks:
Art as Public Discourse"
Check out this collaborative exhibition of Lacks-inspired works featuring art by students of Drawing II and 2D Design and original poems by students of Poetry Writing.