

GET YOUR STUDENTS INVOLVED IN A COMMUNITY SERVICE LEARNING PROJECT BY ENTERING THE 2017 GROSSMONT FOOD FAIR

Encourage your students to get involved in our 2018 Food Fair. This event works like a science fair, but the overall theme this year is food. Students will have their own booths to demonstrate their discoveries and topics on food.

The categories this year are:

Social Justice: These may include (but are not limited to) issues of access, labor (e.g. human trafficking in the fishing industry), economics, political power, and legal issues. Students should address the nature of the inequity and offer suggestions/solutions that would better promote Social Justice.

Sustainability: Topics may include (but are not limited to) ecological health (e.g. pesticides and runoff), energy usage, waste, effective transport, and technological interventions.

Human Health: This may include (but is not limited to) pollution, contamination, disease (e.g. avian flu), and/or personal nutrition. The focus may be narrow (a single human body) or may take a broader view and consider food in relation to public health issues.

Local Application: The projects may include (but are not limited to) “local” improvements to the growth to consumption processes of the agriculture/seafood industry, implementation of sustainable food systems, and the creation/implementation of projects which improve access to healthful foods (e.g. a canned food drive), and promotion/education plans.

Food Deconstructed: Topics can range from digestion, to the process of fermentation, to chemical reactions in food recipes. A combination of chemistry and biology, this category seeks to explain how food works internally or externally.
